

SIFT MEDIA215 LIVE!

Sisters in Film and Television

FALL 2020

Philadelphia Filmmakers Workshop Series

DIY Activist Workshop

Photo credit: Lucas Alvarado Farrar

THU
OCT
1st
7:00
PM
(EST)

The SIFTMedia 215 DIY Activist Workshop will empower filmmakers of all skill levels to document with confidence, safety, and creativity.

Led by Sabaah Folayan, the producer and director of WHOSE STREETS?, we will take a deep dive into effectively covering protests and high-stress situations during times of social unrest. Topics addressed will include how to stay safe during the CoVid pandemic, how to stay out of harm's way and get good footage during protests, and ethical guidelines regarding protestors, police, etc.

Providing historical context and current concerns to the conversation will be filmmakers Alile Sharon Larkin, Nadine Patterson, and Nasya Jenkins.

Sabaah Folayan uses visual media to bring a hopeful yet unflinching perspective to the urgent questions of our time. A truth-teller whose centers love and compassion in pushing for radical change, Sabaah Folayan made her directorial debut at the 2017 Sundance Film Festival with the feature-length documentary, WHOSE STREETS?.

More Info & Free Registration Here

This project has been supported by the Independence Public Media Foundation.

