Grants are an excellent way to jumpstart a film project and garner support for your work. But many independent filmmakers are reluctant about the process. How do you describe an unusual project to a potential funder? How do you decide how much to ask for? How do you determine which fund to apply to, or who to ask for support? How do I make a good elevator pitch? In this SIFTMedia 215 Live Grantwriting Workshop, we will explore these issues.

If you are interested in taking the workshop, please send your name, a brief project description, and general budget overview to siftmedia215@gmail.com, with SIFTMedia 215 Live Grantwriting Workshop in the subject header.

Nadine Patterson has been making independent films through Harmony Image Productions since 1995. She has received grants for projects and fellowships from The Philadelphia Foundation, The Independence Foundation, The National Black Programming Consortium, The Bartol Foundation, The Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, the Leeway Foundation, the Pennsylvania Humanities Council and Independence Public Media Foundation. Her most recent film project We Are Free Because of Harriet Tubman screened at the 9th Edition of BlackStar and the 2020 SF Doc Film Festival.
